

Clarisse Nicoïdski was born in France into a family of Sephardic Jews from Sarajevo. She attended the Lyceum in Casablanca, Morocco and studied linguistics and English in Paris. She is considered by some the most important Sephardic poet of the 20th century.